This conference will focus on a core competency for Union Representatives – Grievance Handling. Throughout the session, participants will develop the skills necessary to become effective grievance handlers, including techniques for conducting thorough investigations, taking detailed and accurate notes, and presenting grievances clearly and professionally. Additionally, we will address strategies for supporting members when their concerns extend beyond the scope of the agreement, including how to mobilize effectively to achieve fair outcomes. As one of our most popular conferences last year, we encourage you to register early to secure your participation.

We anticipate this class will fill up quicky, and those responding earliest with completed registration and non-refundable fees will have the best chance of being accepted before we reach capacity. Local Unions should select alternates in the event a delegate cancels at the last minute. Rather than an expense, these weeks should be considered an investment in the future of your local union.

In solidarity,

Brandon Campbell, Director
